

At Whiston Willis Primary Academy, we use 'No Outsiders in our School: teaching the equality Act in Primary Schools' by Andrew Moffatt. This approach is to provide schools and resources to schools to deliver the objectives outlined in the Equality Act 2010 which make it against the law to discriminate against an individual because of a range of protected characteristics.

The No Outsiders approach provides lesson plans and discussion points for each year group from Reception to Y6 based on a selection of books.

Issues that are addressed include, gender identity, religion, race, sexual orientation, disability and age. The focus is to notice, celebrate and develop resilience around diversity. Through discussion and activities based on these books, pupils are encouraged to show respect and develop their understanding of diversity.

Class teachers will deliver the programme throughout the year using developmental appropriate books during story sessions and focused reading sessions.

All school staff will promote and recognise the NO OUTSIDERS ethos as part of our school life.

Assemblies will also support and explore related topics and promote our inclusive ethos. The main resource we use for school assemblies and collective worship is 'Simply Collective Worship' which

Why is this important?

It is important that within our school culture, children, staff and our whole school community work together to foster an environment of inclusivity through effective spiritual, moral, social and cultural (SMSC) development.

It is vital that our pupils can discuss inappropriate and discriminative language and understand how to address boundaries in order to prepare for a future in modern Britain.

We strive to ensure that our pupils are surrounded by a consistent message:

Everyone is welcome. No one is the same, but everyone is equal.

We live in the UK and our British values support this and the law says this too.

We will work with all our families to deliver this message of inclusivity.

If any parents would like any further information about this approach, please contact your child's class teacher.
